Adventure Trails

Adventure trail equipment is well established in schools and playgrounds and designed well it can be a great means to encourage children to move about the playground in the direction you want them to. Adventure trail can be designed to suit KS1 or KS2 age groups although they are best suited to KS1 where low level balance and co-ordination are more of a challenge. Adventure trails can be suited to KS2 age groups through the use of ropes, springs and rock traverse panels all providing ability appropriate and fun challenges

Endless Layout Possibilities

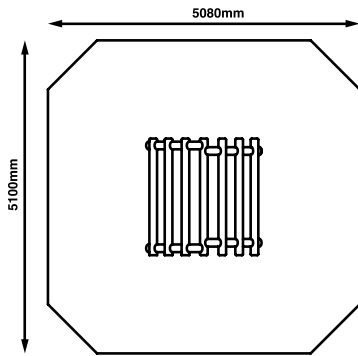

Adventure trails work well in loops taking children away and then back again. An adventure trail can circle other play units like higher level climbers.

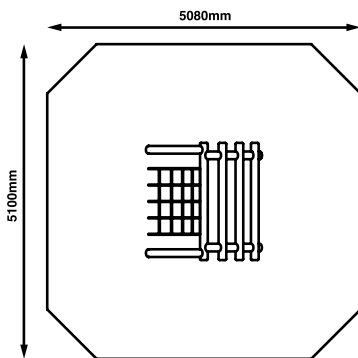

Adventure trail units can be arranged in a multitude of ways to include both high and low level items.

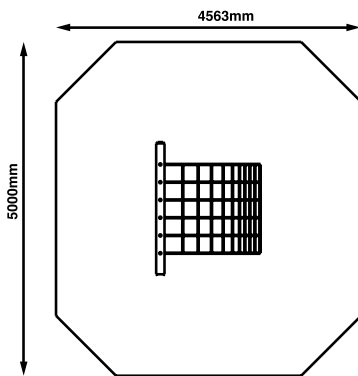

Model One

Model Two

Model Three

The up and overs are simple timber climbers available with log climber, scramble nets or both and offer either one or two angled challenges.

Up & Over

Rock Traverse

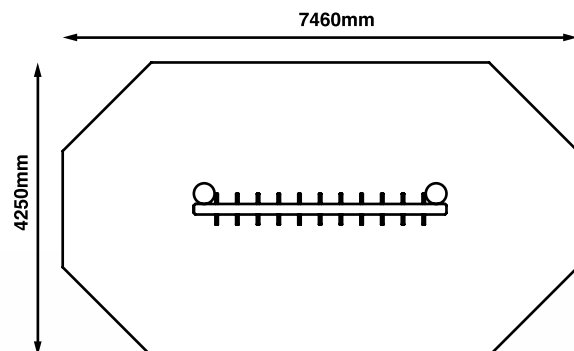

The rock traverse panels are a low level activity that can be installed as a stand alone item or incorporated as part of an adventure trail. Each section measures 1.2M long and can be installed as multiples of this. Safer surfacing is not required generally for this equipment when installed onto well maintained grass as the activity takes place below 600mm.

Monkey Rungs

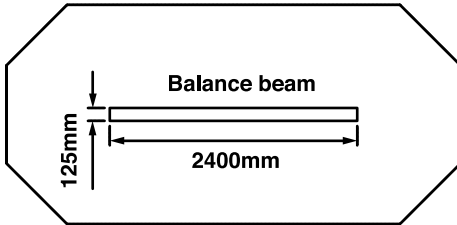

Monkey Rungs are one of the most popular challenges in any playground. Children love to see if they have the strength and stamina to get from start to finish.
