

Langley Design were delighted to be chosen by Galliford Try to bring Kensington Taylors cycle shelter designs to life on the Bodmin & Tolvaddon developments. This housing project consisted of 113 beautifully designed contemporary new homes. Due to Langley Design's bespoke nature, we were able to create a brand new range of cycle shelter solutions that met the clients design aspirations. On the Bodmin development, the addition of galvanised metal gates alongside a powdercoated fascia gives a modern twist on the usual timber construction and gates. The Bodmin project opted for a metal roof and fully enclosed units whilst the Tolvaddon development went for a clear polycarbonate roof and kept the shelters open. Langley Design's flexible approach to manufacture and the ability to install our own products meant we exceeded all expectations and enabled us to deliver on time and in budget.
