

Langley Design were chosen by McLaughlin & Harvey to provide a whole range of pre cast concrete benching to the new mixed-use development regeneration of Elms Field in Wokingham Town Centre.

As a bespoke manufacturer we were able to match the architect's design vision to create a mix of shapes and sizes such as cubes, curves and L Shaped benches. Due to the town centre location, all concrete was made with an anti-graffiti coating which enables these units to be practically self-cleaning. Hardwood Iroko slats were chosen to timber top the benches due to its excellent durability and high-quality finish. The warmth of the timber against the harshness of the concrete allows a beautiful combination to offer functional yet aesthetically pleasing solutions. Langley Design have the capabilities to bring a whole range of design ideas to the market and we manufacture a wide range of external solutions to support contractors across all sectors.
